NEW BUS SCHEDULE IS ANNOUNCED FOR COMING YEAR AT HIGH SCHOOL

Advantages Seen In Plan Submitted by Board of Trustees

Coming as a subect of interest to the entire community is the announcement made by the high school board of trustees of the changes which have been made in the Washington Union high bus schedules for the coming school year. These changes are expected to result in several advantages over the service provided in former years.

The township routes will be covered by five busses, hereafter, instead of six, with each machine making two trips. The first run will arrive at the school at ten minutes after eight every morning and bring pupils from Niles, Mission San Jose, Warm Springs, Irvington, and J. V. Goolds' route. The second run will arrrive at the school at ten minutes to nine every morning and bring Newark, Alvarado and Decoto pupils.

The early bussess will leave for home in the afternoon at three o'clock, while the last loads will leave at twenty minutes to four in the afternoon.

In addition to doing away with the services of one bus, the new schedules will eliminate the long wait before and after school previously endured by the pupils.

The practice of having no noon hour will be continued this year at the school, with the students having their choice of the fifth or seventh period for lunches. Band orchestra, and dramatics rehearsals will be held during these periods in the future, while all athletic practice will be held after school.

The scouts will be under the direction of Irving P. Beesley, scout executive of southern Alameda county.

DEER SLATED FOR TROUBLED LIFE AFTER MONDAY

With the opening of the deer season only four days off, Niles and Washington township nimrods have been busy oiling, cleaning and getting their shooting irons in first class condition, preparatory to setting out Monday to bag their first buck of the year.

From Monday, August 1, when the season opens, until September 14, the closing day, the nimble footed creatures will have to make themselves scarce if they have aspirations of living through the winter, because any boldness on their part will promptly be taken advantage of by the unerring marksmen and relentless hunters in this section of the county, who are known for their ability in getting results the first day of the season.

With such sharpshooters as E. D. Bristow, Jack and Bob Vieux, Ben Murphy, Ed Rose, Harry Abrott, Sr., O. W. Ebright, Harry Cesari, Walter Martenstein, from Niles, and other equally capable shooters from other parts of the township hot on their trail from the opening day, the deer are justified in keeping close to cover. Although it is not expected that such a large group of hunters will be out Monday as was the case last year when the season opened on Sunday, many of the local game seekers plan to bring home some meat on the initial day.

According to reports, deer in this section of the county are more plentiful than ever this year, and it is expected the first day will result in some good shooting.

NOCTURNAL VISITOR PUTS NILES NIGHT PATROLMAN TO FLIGHT

WHEN IS an officer of the law justified in beating a hasty retreat, even at the threat of immediate disaster? Some of you readers might say, never, but you have yet to hear of the experiences of Arthur Roderick, vigilant guardian of the safety of Niles while most people are peacefully reposing under the charms of Morpheus.

Believe it or not, Roderick will tell you of certain dangers, which even an able bodied officer cannot defy with immunity, and what could one do but agree.

While making his rounds during the wee small hours during the past two weeks, the night patrolman has been subjected to the presence of a visitor which would cause thrills of apprehension to travel up the spine of the most fearless individual. Walking unconcernedly up First street, Niles, last week, Roderick was enjoying the peacefullness of the scene, when what should confront him but a skunk, who apparently feeling the depression in the hills, had come to town to seek a better livelihood. Wagging his tail, he approached Roderick making advances like a friendly dog.

Not relishing intimate companionship with the animal, the night officer set out hastily up the street. But the odoriferous one was determined to make Roderick's acquaintance and set out in close pursuit. When the chase reached the Peerless restaurant, the pursuer, preceiving the door open to the eating establishment, stuck his head in inquisitively as if looking for more amiable companionship. Those at the counter were thrown into consternation when they observed the close scrutiny of the visitor, but breathed a sigh of relief when he continued up the street after his first desire.

After cautious and subtle mansouvering, Roderick avoided his would-be musteline friend, but claims the animal has appeared again on the streets of Niles on several occasions. At present he will welcome any suggestion as to how the creature can be persuaded from making Niles his haunts during the nocturnal hours. Of course, he could resort to his gun, but he dreads the after effects of such a slaying.

FARWELL PROJECT TO BE COMPLETED DURING AUGUST

Contractors Rush Work On Niles Canyon Underpass

A stretch of highway forty-six feet wide with an attractive grade, where at present a narrow and hazardous road with three dangerous curves and a steep grade exist, will greet motorists up Niles Canyon after about the middle of August when the Farwell underpass is expected to be completed.

According to C. A. Bruce and Sons, of Pleasanton, who are in charge of the contract work in building the underpass, although not entirely complete, the new road will be ready for travel by the middle of August. Ten men are employed daily at present in completing the fill for the new road and two steam shovels are excavating dirt to build the foundation for the highway, which will be constructed by the county. The concrete wall for the fill already has been finished, and from now on the remainder of the construction work will progress rapidly, stated the contracters.

When the new pass is ready for traffic, one of the most dangeros spots of travel in Niles Canyon will be eliminated. Proposed construction of the underpass had been held up for a long period of time pending the settlement of a suit between Alameda county and the Southern Pacific railroad company in regard to right-of-way claims. This spring the United States supreme court decided in favor of the county.

Passenger Trains Pass Through Centerville

Innovating a service which has not been in practice for years, passenger trains are now passing through Centerville. The Southern Pacific has begun recently to route trains from Niles through Centerville and over the Dumbarton bridge into San Francisco.

Heretofore, only freight trains traveled over this route. Several long passenger trains of Shriners en route to their convention in San Francisco passed over the new route during the week-end.

TWO GUILTY ON LIQUOR CHARGE

A plea of guilty to possession of liquor was made in the Hayward court of Judge Jacob Harder, Jr., last Wednesday morning by John Martinez and Joseph Keles, of Decoto. The two men were arrested several weeks ago by county officers in a raid on a home-made distillery in Decoto.

Original charges against the pair was possession of a still, but by an agreement with Deputy District Attorney Harry Styles, they were allowed to plead guilty to the liquor possession count and the other charge was dropped.

Both men face a possible maximum sentence of six months in jail or $500 fine when they come up for sentence before Judge Harder this week.

MOSQUITOS CEASE TO BE NUISANCE IN TOWNSHIP

For the first time in years, residents of Washington township are experiencing freedom from the annoyances of mosquitos during the summer nights as the result of the effective work done by the Mosquito Abatement District.

Several months of oiling ponds, draining lands of stagnant water, and planting mosquito eating fish in bodies of fresh water throughot this territory have reduced the number of the pests to such a degree that they can hardly be considered a nuisance at present, according to Roland Bendel, of Decoto, in charge of the elimination work in this district. He stated that complaints of the pests activities have almost ceased during the last few months.

Here's Something To Dispell Depression Gloom

The following is from an editorial by Henry Ansley of Amarillo News-Globe, Amarillo, Texas. It puts a little humor in the present situation, and perhaps helps us forget the troubles that are confronting us. The paper is as follows:

I like the depression. No more prosperity for me.

I have had more fun since the depression started than I ever had in my life. I had forgotten how to live, what it meant to have real friends, what it was like to eat common everyday food. Fact is, I was getting just a little high hat.

Three years ago, only one man of the News-Globe organization could be out of town at a time and he had to leave at the last minute and get back as soon as posible. Many times I have driven 100 miles to a banquet, sat through three hours of bunk in order to make a 5 minute speech, then drive 100 miles back so as to be ready for work the next morning.

Nowadays, as many News-Globe employees as are invited make those trips and we stay as long as we want to. The whole out fit could leave the office now and it wouldn't make any difference.

I like the depression. I have time to visit my friends, to make new ones. Two years ago when I went to a neighboring town, I always stayed at the hotel. Now I go home with my friends, stay all night and enjoy home cooking. I have even spent the week-end with some of the boys who have been kind enough to invite me.

It's great to drop into a store and feel that you can spend an hour or two or three or a half a day just visiting and not feel that you are wasting valuable time. maybe. I like the depression.

I am geting acquainted with my neighbors. In the last six months I have become acquainted with folks who have been living next door to me for three years. I am following the Biblical admonition, "Love your neighbors." One of my neighbors has one of the best looking wives I have seen. She is a dandy. I am getting acquainted with my neighbors and learning to love them.

Three years ago I ordered my clothes from a merchant tailor—two or three suits at a time. All my clothes were good ones. I was always dressed up. But now, I haven't bought a suit in two years. I am mighty proud of my Sunday go to meeting clothes. When I dress up, I am dressed up, and I don't mean maybe. I like the depression.

Three years ago I was so busy and my wife was so busy that we didn't see much of each other, consequently we sort of lost interest in each other. I never went home to lunch. About twice a week I went home for dinner—at 6:30 o'clock. I never had time to go anywhere with her. If we did go on a party, I could never locate her, since there was always a "blonde" or "redhead" available I didn't worry much about it.

My wife belonged to all the

EXCAVATION WORK UNCOVERS ANCIENT INDIAN LIFE DATA

Newark Native Burial Plot Yields Many Interesting Relics

Drawing back time's curtain of approximately one thousand years to offer an insight into the life of a long ago Indian tribe, George Robinson, Stanford university medical student, is writing what may prove to be a valuable chapter in the scientific study of anthropology in this state, by the excavations he is now conducting of the ancient burial mound near Newark.

Several skeletons, mortars, beads and other finds already have been brought to the light of day by Robinson, who believes that the natives interred in the mound antedates the life of the oldest mound builders recorded by scientists.

Stanford authorities have placed the age of the bones uncovered by the medical student at about 800 years, but Robinson is of the opinion that he has discovered certain characteristics in connection with the excavation work which may prove this tribe lived over 1000 years ago. Of particular interest is the burial customs practiced by these natives.

According to Robinson, the bones are in an excellent state of preservation, due to the fact the dead were encased in clay and baked harder than a modern kiln baked brick. This is considered a unique system of burial and no record is known of other tribes having used it.

The burial mound is a mass of burned clay, with pieces ranging in size from small particles to lumps the size of a human head. Where the clay used, was obtained, is not known, the burial ground being located in an adobe field.

Found also in the mound was an abundance of albatross bones, which is puzzling to the excavators. These bones seemed to have been burned with the bones of the Indians and encased in the same clay which covered the bodies of the dead. Identification of the bones was possible through comparison with skeletons of various tropical bones at Stanford university. According to authorities, it is the first time evidence has been found of the albatross, a tropical bird, ever having inhabited the coast of California.

Judging from the position in which the bodies were found in the mound, these ancient Indians held Mission Peak in awe. All the bodies were interred in a sitting position, with head bent between the knees, and all of them facing Mission Peak.

SURPRISE MILK TEST RATES HIGH IN PLEASANTON

Count Conducted Last Week by D. A. Cordrey and N. E. Clemens

Pleasanton milk distributors emerged with high honors from a surprise milk test conducted last week by D. A. Cordrey, state market milk specialist from the department of agriculture. Cordrey was assisted throughout the tests by Nelson E. Clemens, city milk inspector.

The city's average score on a volume basis was 96.9 points out of a possible one hundred. This record shows an increase of one-tenth of a point over the average score of the last surprise test. A score of 96.8 was made in a similar test conducted six months ago. The remarkable fact about Pleasanton's record is that its score in each succeeding test is always a little better than before.

"Pleasanton's score of 96.9," stated Cordrey, "indicates efficient dairy control work on the part of Dr. J. Hal Cope, health officer, and Milk Inspector Clemens."

Mrs. Domingo is now at the county jail in Oakland awaiting her trial. She is being represented by the public defender.

As a candidate for Supervisor I am fully awake to the fact that our taxes are beyond our ability, as property owners, to pay, and I recognize that ways and means MUST be found to reduce them.

In view of these facts I submit the platform on which I faithfully pledge myself to stand:

To support economical and tax saving measures.

The voluntary reduction of the supervisors' salaries in proportion to the reduction, already made or to be made, of the salaries and wages of other county employees.

The elimination of expensive automobiles furnished the supervisors by the county.

The elimination of the position of road foremen as under the present charter they are given no authority over road work.

To dispense with the unfair and unnecessary road tax.

Fairness and impartiality to all seeking county employment and aid.

If You Could "Listen in" Mr. Grocer

"Yum-yum! Something smells like a Thanksgiving dinner, Dorothy!"

"Well, we are having more of a meal than usual," the younger woman replied. "Come right in, Mrs. Runyan, and sample my new salad."

After Mrs. Runyan had approved the salad—and the cookies—she remarked: "I wish I had known Spencer's were having a special on so many things today—I might have been able to prepare such a good dinner for my husband, too!"

Has it occurred to you, Mr. Grocer, that there may be quite a number of wives who look to you for help in planning their meals? A well-printed circular, listing a number of items at special prices, delivered on the kitchen table with today's order, will bring you increased business tomorrow.

We can print for you a weekly bulletin, costing only a small percentage of the profit it will bring you. Then the same ad can be run in our newspaper for—Well, the total cost of the service will certainly please you!

Try it this coming week. Let's get started right now!

Under the direction of the new manager, Jack Marsh, the Pleasanton Merchants defeated the Oakland Cardinals by a score of eight to one recently.

Jimmie Trimingham pitched the first seven innings of the game and struck out eight men and allowed but one walk. Manager Marsh pitched the last two innings.

Frank Peters, Jr., was the hitting star for the day. He was up at bat three times and got three hits, one of which was a home run. The Merchants used two lineups.

The starting lineup included Faria, cf.; Garcia, ss.; Paulo, 1st.; Peters, c.; Anselmo, 3rd.; Souza, 2nd.; Silva, rf.; and Trimingham, p.

Pleasanton Race Horses in Reno, Salinas Meets

Turf Competition Scheduled at Both Places Over Week-End

Several famous race horses left Pleasanton for Salinas and Reno early last week to participate in the races held in both places in connection with the Salinas Rodeo and the Reno Gold Rush Celebration.

One of the most famous Pleasanton horses that left town was Nanamay, owned by Stevens and Brown. Nanamay was shipped to Salinas by truck Monday along with other horses from the same stable. The races at Salinas started Wednesday and will continue until Sunday evening. Other horses taken to Salinas by Stevens and Brown included Rufe McClain, Hasteaway, and Our Hills. All these horses made a good showing at the races held in Pleasanton on July 3 and 4.

Kane Brothers, who are training horses at the Pleasanton track, are sending a horse called Bon Moon to Salinas.

Several racers from the Watson stable and three belonging to E. C. Brown, Jr., took part in the races held in Reno this week.

Baled Hay Is Stolen From Santa Rita Farm

Twenty-six bales of hay were stolen from the field farmed by James Thompson, of Santa Rita, recently, according to Constable Albert E. Vervais, of Pleasanton, who has been investigating the case for the past few days.

According to clues discovered by Vervais, the hay was stolen by men who were driving a large truck. The guilty ones have not yet been located.

Effect of Sunspots

Some ornithologists contend that migratory birds are "pulled" south in the fall by a yearning for ultra-violet light. When the fall light loses its glare, birds turn toward the brighter sunshine in the South like moths to a flame. That's the story.

Since biological light affects animals and parasites oppositely, the study of zoology is very complicated. In one way or another, the whole world of life seems to be affected by sunspots. Different organisms in different ways all have their ups and downs, which apparently run in cycles.—Los Angeles Times.

Modest Modernism

Here is a Whistler story, which was told by Joseph Pennell, himself a distinguished artist: "Whistler, when an art student, used to copy celebrated paintings in the Louvre. I found him there one day, hard at work on a copy of the famous 'Mona Lisa.' 'You've done a fine thing there!' I remarked, for the copy was a good one. 'Yes,' Whistler agreed. 'I am pleased with it,' and then, in his whimsical way, he added: 'I wonder what they'll do with the poor old original now?'"—Toronto Globe.

Pleasanton Gold Star Mother To Visit in France

Trip to Graves of War Dead Will Be Gift of Government

Mrs. J. M. Perry, the only gold-star mother of the Pleasanton American Legion Post, has received a letter from the United States War Department inviting her to take a trip to visit the graves of the World War soldiers in France next spring.

Beginning in 1930, every spring, mothers of the World War dead have been invited on this trip to France at the expense of the government. Already 6,000 mothers have visited France during the past two years. The spring of 1933 will be the last opportunity the gold-star mothers will have to take advantage of the opportunity. The trip takes about three months. In the past Mrs. Perry has not been able to make the journey, but she expects to go next spring. Reservations have to be made several months ahead of time, it was stated.

Hard for Humanity to Meet These Conditions

There's a halo, a pair of wings and a through ticket on the heavenly express countersigned by St. Peter, general passenger agent, all ready and waiting for:

The husband who has never wished he could get back the amount he paid for his wife's engagement ring.

The man who can preserve a light heart with a heavy liver.

The girl who marries for love and can honestly say that she has never wished she had married for money.

The man who, in time of drought, can pray for rain when his own roof leaks.

The bride who promises to obey without having her fingers crossed.

The man who can stand up for his own rights without sitting on everybody else.

The real estate agent who tells the truth about that walk to the station.

The man who can turn the other cheek when he finally gets his enemy in his power.

The married woman who has never complained that all men are alike.

The man who can forget an injury without forgetting he has forgotten it.

The man who is as perfect as his wife thinks he ought to be.—Town Topics.

Health Hint

It is extremely unwise to neglect a cough. If ordinary remedies fail it is always best to consult a physician for a chest examination to see whether the inflammation is spreading. Why court the possibilities of lung trouble?

Municipal Opera

AS AN experiment as well as to have a delightful place for folks to go for uplifting entertainment on warm nights, a group of St. Louisans, in 1919, hit upon the idea of constructing an open-air municipal theater in a great natural park which since has become a mecca for music and opera lovers.

"The open-air Municipal Opera of St. Louis," declared a New York visitor, "is a bit of Mittel Europa set down in our American Midwest. It is strangely exotic, and yet it fits into Forest park like a lady's hand in a well-made glove."

The meandering little River Des Peres (often jokingly referred to as the River Despair), floored over, made a stage of generous proportions. A group of lovely trees provided a background; two huge oaks rising through the flooring complete this lovely, nature-made setting. An orchestra pit was arranged and a lighting effect capable of producing scenes of fairy-like loveliness installed. A convenient, curving hillside which slopes down to the stage was lined with seemingly endless rows of seats and the ensemble was complete.

A 40-piece orchestra provides the music and the chorus is made up of 96 picked St. Louis boys and girls, some of whom have been heard at the New York Metropolitan opera house, and took part in the cast.

There are 7,613 reserved and 1,600 free seats with standing room for 2,000 additional visitors. The season is for 12 weeks, starting about June 1. On one evening during the 1926 season, 11,000 persons crowded themselves into the enclosure and 5,000 more were turned away—56,000 came in one week.

Alliances in Warfare That Had Good Results

Yorktown, a victory that was won by an army made up of Americans and Frenchmen, forces reconsideration of the popular dictum about the impotence of allies. No doubt Germany in the World war derived a great advantage from singleness of purpose and unity of command, as against divided counsels and leadership. The great Napoleon profited enormously by the same circumstances. He divided his opponents and beat them, as the Romans divided their opponents and ruled them. Before him, Frederick the Great knew the secret.

Nevertheless, the general impression that alliances are regularly burlesque and allies are regularly defeated is far from the truth. Judging by the decisive events of history, it has been the other way about. The World war was, after all, won by the allies. Napoleon went down at Waterloo because an ally named Blucher turned up in time to help an ally named Wellington. And two allies named Washington and Rochambeau did work in harmony and to good purpose.—New York Times.

Romance Among the "Down-and-Outs"

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

EVA slipped off her dainty afternoon frock of love-in-mist blue, hung it in her wardrobe and took down a cotton frock of dusty brown. The latter was a work frock—solely and simply a work frock—for Eva would soon be on her way toward Battery park and the coffee stall where nightly she dispensed hot coffee and sandwiches to the "down and outs" of that neighborhood.

Eva had rented the coffee stall and its equipment for a month and thoroughly enjoyed a fragment of life she had not hitherto known. Not that she had always known a degree of affluence, Eva had worked long and hard for the possession of the dainty flat and its comfortable furnishings which she now enjoyed.

Eva wasn't dispensing coffee because she loved being among the "down and outs," but simply because she must enlarge her scope for story writing.

There was one other down in Battery park, also enlarging his mental outlook but his look was straying more toward the development of his romantic capacity. He was, in fact, casting many a glance of deep interest at the wide-eyed girl who seemed so thoroughly out of her element handing out coffee to the none too clean derelicts who lined up at her stall.

He fell to wondering, as he consumed endless cups of her coffee, just what kind of fate had put her where she was instead of in an exquisitely furnished drawing room—a far more fitting background than the row of hot dogs, chipped cups and steaming coffee urns.

And the back of Eva's mind was not lacking in speculation regarding the young man in the shabby knickers and outrageous neckties.

She scoffed at the idea that he might be down there for the same purpose as herself—to study humanity in this stratum.

"Those things only happen in the movies and the lesser type of dime novel," she told herself, but she continued none the less her guarded study of him, telling herself firmly that she had chosen him as a type. She would catalogue him merely as an unusually attractive type of "down and outer" who must, at one time of his career, have been possessed of great opportunities. Eva knew, by the keen look in his eyes, that the hang-dog glance of the gutter inhabitant would never besmirch his countenance.

His language, on the other hand, was simply atrocious. Eva thought he must have taken lessons in the expert butchering of the king's english.

Eva came very near hitting the mark in her surmise, for young W. Owen Jones had spent many troubled hours in an endeavor to master a diction that would put him on a speaking level, as it were, with that element of human kind of which he was making a close study. His first play, produced on Broadway, had brought forth scathing criticism for his lack of characterization—the play itself being otherwise of great promise. Owen had closed his jaws with a click and gone about showing the critics that they would not say the same thing twice about his shortcomings.

His second play was nearing completion and before many days had passed James would cast off the physical and mental mire of the derelict and revert to his natural element—that of scholar and gentleman.

Eva, for some unknown reason, always flung on a cloak of armor when James approached the stall with his confreres. Perhaps it was to guard herself since she was at a loss to know just where to catalogue him in her gallery of derelicts. She succeeded in baffling him as well as herself.

When rehearsals began for the new play young James was forced away from the Battery by a need of his presence on Broadway.

Eva, too, had lodged the coffee stall again with its rightful holder and repaired to her dainty apartment with a fine plot for the movies. Her typewriter clicked incessantly. Her heart, too, when it had time, thumped a dull tattoo, when the eyes of a certain "down and outer" intruded into her fast-moving plot. She couldn't forget him, and wondered if she had begun to lose her mind—pining for a bit of masculine driftwood from Battery park.

Eva went naturally, to the first night of the new play by W. Owen James.

The play received a rousing welcome. The author was called and stepped shyly out to thank the audience in words that prompted Eva to surmise that he had bathed his vocabulary in the limpid pools of the king's english, so exquisite was his speech.

Turning his eyes toward the front rows, where all the critics seemed to have gathered, W. Owen James' speech suddenly halted, picked itself up and continued.

He had looked squarely into the wide eyes of Eva, an Eva in her rightful environment of intellect and chiffons.

His next play was a collaboration with much that was romantic woven into its successful lines.

Wanted Movies

Nobody knows where she got her pass to the symphony concert at Severance hall, or why she thought of crashing the portals of that dignified concert hall.

She was obviously not the symphony type. She sat and squirmed throughout the first part of the program, looking very bored and very puzzled. At the intermission she left her seat and went in search of an usher.

"Say," she demanded, "when do the movies start?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Ideal to Be Sought

We have still with us many of the veterans of 1865, but their numbers are diminishing year by year. There is a new order of veterans today. Many of that same order sleep in the fields of Flanders and the other battlefields of the World war; their favorite slogan was: "Carry on!" This should mean that ideals for which they laid down their lives to preserve shall not be lost sight of. One of the great ideals aimed at was world brotherhood.

Cargo Sailors Dislike

Many common cargoes have some curious and unpleasant characteristics. Sugar, for instance, gives off a powerful and often poisonous gas. It has also a sickening odor, and you cannot get the sweet taste out of your mouth. The men simply crave vinegar or lemon juice—anything sour. "Deliver us from sugar" is the sailor's earnest prayer.

Mere Man

Henri Daube, French painter, was speaking in cynical mood about the modern woman: "Nowadays, a lady's male acquaintance takes precedence in this order—her friend, her suitor, her dancing partner, her bridge favorite, her barber, her husband."

In Time of Need

If a hot-water bottle is needed and one is not at hand, a plain glass bottle will fill the bill. Warm the bottle first and then pour in the boiling water. Cork tightly and wrap in a flannel or the warmest material on hand. This suggestion sometimes comes in handy when on a picnic and someone is taken ill suddenly.

Glorious Opportunities

We lay so much stress on the glorious political opportunities open to American youth. We ought to lay stress also on the facility with which the highest and greatest are reabsorbed into the ranks of private citizenship when their days of service and elevation are over. —Providence Journal.

Early Motion Pictures

The modern motion picture dates from about the year 1893, when Edison produced his kinetoscope, the first machine of the kind using film. Edward Muybridge, often called the "father of moving pictures," had preceded him by about 20 years, but was handicapped by the fact that he had to use glass plates. Other pioneers before Edison were Sellers, Lincoln, Marey, etc. In 1894 C. Francis Jenkins was the first to produce moving pictures by modern methods. The first public showing of moving pictures was made in June, 1894.

As far back as 4000 B. C. we know that people liked to cut designs in wood with a sharp instrument, and excavations in Egypt have shown that people of that ancient time were skillful in the art. From that date on, in almost every land, carving has been a widespread and popular art.

But today, in most parts of the world, wood-carving exists only in the hobby or pastime of whittling. The hand working of wood is too slow for this rapid machine age. Only in Switzerland, France and, to a lesser extent, England, does the art hold its place among other occupations, and even in these countries there is little demand except for the work of the most famous carvers.

Pelicans

Forget How

to Fish

Lesson for

Humans

This is a story of California. It is about the pelicans of Santa Monica Bay and these pelicans remind us of a lot of us human beings. The experience teaches us that more and better sales effort is required by every last one of us.

For years these pelicans had been fed by fishermen from their surplus catch, until they got the habit of eating without work.

This year high seas and changing currents off Santa Monica cut down the catch, and fishermen no longer had any fish to spare. They noticed that the pelicans languished and grew thin and it dawned on them that they had forgotten how to fish for themselves. So they went down the coast and found some unpampered pelicans who had never been ruined by easy living and free fish. They turned them loose among the starving birds, who sat about on the beach and complained of hard times.

The way those imported pelicans went out after their own fish was an eye-opener. Pretty soon the hungry natives quit watching and tried it themselves. They discovered there are plenty of fish in the sea for the bird with energy and enterprise. And they've quit talking about the hard times.

BABE IS BORN IN CAMP GROUND TENT

Other cities and towns have their stories of unusal places and circumstances of birth. Now Pleasanton has hers.

Pleasanton's newest inhabitant was born in a tent!

Doris Manzanita Hampton, infant daughter of Mrs. Wade Hampton, was born in a tent at the Pleasanton auto camp last week.

Pleasanton Health and Welfare authorities tried to get the expectant mother to go to a hospital, but she refused, stating that she would rather her child were born in the tent where all its brothers and sisters had been born. Mr and Mrs. Hampton have been in Pleasanton for several weeks. They have five children, the oldest being six years of age. Hampton is in the white wash business, but is now confined in Letterman Hospital.

Pleasanton Court Has Very Busy Day

Eight warrants were issued in last week's court for the arrest of traffic offenders who failed to appear in Pleasanton.

Judge Charles A. Gale also continued three cases until later dates, suspended judgement in two cases, forfeited bail on one, and levied one fine of fifteen dollars, one of twenty-five, and one of fifty on reckless driving charges.

Scott's Corners Is Crash Scene Last Monday

Three Persons Slightly Injured in Two-Car Smashup

While attempting to make the turn at Scott's Corners at an excessive rate of speed, Mrs. F. E. Wynn, of San Jose, crashed into the light truck driven by Eddie J. Martinez, of San Jose, last Monday, according to Constable Albert E. Vervais, of Pleasanton, who investigated the wreck.

Martinez was traveling toward Sunol, and Mrs. Wynn was going in the direction of Mission San Jose. Mrs. Wynn was driving a large sedan and was accompanied by her husband.

In the car with Martinez were three passengers, two of whom received injuries. Manuel Oahoa, ten years old, was cut on the face, hands and arms. He was picked up by a passing motorist and brought to Dr. W. D'Arcy Chase, of Pleasanton, for first aid treatment. Martinez received a few cuts and bruises. Mrs. Bertha Oahoa also suffered bruises. Manuel Guetara, another passenger in the car, was unhurt. All were from San Jose.

Both cars were badly damaged and were hauled away by a Sunol garage.

MORE ON DEPRESSION

clubs in town. She even joined the young mother's club. We don't have any children but she was studying—and between playing bridge and going to clubs she was never at home.

We got stuck up and hifalutin. We even took down the old family bed and bought twin beds—on the installment plan.

When I would come home at night, if my wife was at home, she would already be in her bed and I would crawl in mine. If she came in last it was vice-versa.

We like the depression. We have come down off our pedestal and are really living at my house now. The twin beds are stored in the garage and the old family affair is being used. We are enjoying life. Instead of taking a hot water bottle to bed these cold nights, she sticks her heels in my back just like she did before Hoover was elected.

I haven't been out on a party in 18 months. I have lost my book of telephone numbers. My wife has dropped her clubs. I believe we are falling in love all over again. I am pretty well satisfied with my wife, think I will keep her, at least until she is forty, and then if I feel like I do now, I may trade her for two twenties.

I am feeling better since the depression. I take more exercise. I walk to town and a lot of folks who used to drive Cadillacs are walking with me. I like the depression.

My digestion is better. I have not been to see a doctor in a year. I can eat anything I want to.

I am getting real-honest-to-goodness food. Three years ago, we had filet mignon once a week, now we have round steak and flour gravy. Then we had roast breast of guinea hen, now we are glad to get sow-belly with the buttons on it.

I like the depression. My salary has been cut to where I can't afford to have fancy sandwiches and nameless frozen desserts and all that damfoolishness which has killed more good men than the World War.

I like the depression. Three years ago, I never had time to go to church. I played golf all day Sunday and besides I was so darned smart that there wasn't a member in West Texas who could tell me anything.

Now I am going to church regularly, never miss a Sunday.

And if this depression keeps on, I will be going to prayer meeting before long. I like the depression.
